Hi Everyone!!

I am Aninditha staying at Visakhapatnam.
At the age of 2 years, my mother recognised that I am not responding to any sounds. After that diagnosis, they found that I was born with a hearing problem. All the people around had advised my mother to make me stop studying but my mother encouraged me to study because she believed that it is gonna help me to build my career and confidence in life.

In my 10th class, I got first class and got concession in college fees. I completed my engineering in Anil Neerukonda Institute Of Technology & Sciences college. My professors encouraged and supported me in each and every step to grow. Had a painful experience in campus placements because of my disability, companies had rejected me. After my graduation, my struggles started increasing

Then my friend said about a organization called WinVinaya Foundation and told me that they give training for disability candidates for getting a job.1 approached them and they gave me training how to achieve a job in IT company. After the training, I got an interview from Accenture. After clearing the whole interview process . I finally got placed as application development associate at Accenture company.

Gesture of gratitude

In a time and age when short texts on whatsapp and facetime calls have become the norm for connecting with people, Kartik one of our candidates who got placed in ICICI, took time to pen down a thank you note expressing his heartfelt gratitude to the founders and trainers. He also sent across pictures of his trainers that he digitally designed himself. It was great to see how he has grown to the person he is today!

It is gestures like these that encourage us to continue what we do.

Take a look at it here:

"Opportunities are like sunrises. If you wait too long, you miss them" - William Arthur Ward

A. Ramachandran is a B Tech Graduate from Thanjavur, Tamil Nadu. He is an optimistic person who wants to utilize all the opportunities that come his way. He is a pet lover and a person with an ever present smile. He is currently working in the HR department in DXC Technologies, Bangalore for over 2 years now. He is a person with Cerebral Palsy.

Talking about growing up, he said, he was diagnosed with cerebral palsy at the age of 2 and had to undergo multiple surgeries by the time he was 12 years old. He had to face a lot of challenges including not being able to participate in volleyball games (which he loves) during his school days and a lack of writing skills.

When asked about the turning point in his life, he said his biggest turning point was after he joined WinVinaya Foundation. "I did my graduation in Chemical Engineering but I enrolled in WinVinaya for IT training. At WinVinaya they train candidates and help them learn and understand in a simple yet effective manner. That is a place where I got to know more about myself. After training I got placed in DXC technologies as an Associate in marketing and now I'm working in the HR department."

About the lockdown, he said he spends time with his family, watches movies in his free time and loves spending time with his dogs. He also said he misses maintaining a proper routine & working in the office environment. He believes maintaining a proper & healthy physique results in good mental health.

When asked about his support system and motivation, he said his biggest support system is his mother who always stands by him in good and bad times. He admires Bill Gates and aspires to be like him someday. He wishes to start a new business and provide employment to others.

His message to all of us: "Don't complicate your life too much, whatever opportunity you get, grab it and utilize it." As H Jackson Brown said, "Nothing is more expensive than a missed opportunity." isn't it?

"Don't complicate your life too much, whatever opportunity you get, grab it and utilize it."
